Title: A Nuclear Turning Point

Description: The future of nuclear power, and of the planet, hang in the balance. In the United States, the existing nuclear fleet faces headwinds, while exciting developments in advanced reactors and the fuel cycle hold promise for the future. Globally, while public support for nuclear power remains a challenge in many countries, others are continuing to build and still others looking to launch their own programs. Mr. Poneman will review the state of play at present and prospects for the future, both for nuclear power and the fate of the planet.

Costs and Registration:

- Dinner (beef, chicken, or vegetarian): $20 per person
- Beer or Wine: $3 per beverage
- Advance reservation is requested using the DC-ANS website <http://local.ans.org/dc>

Speaker: Daniel B. Poneman: President and Chief Executive Officer of Centrus Energy Corp.

As Deputy Secretary of Energy from 2009 to 2014, his responsibilities spanned the range of U.S. energy policies – hydrocarbons, renewables, nuclear, and efficiency – including cybersecurity, resilience and emergency response, project management, national security, and international cooperation.

From 1990 through 1996, he served at the National Security Council as Director for Defense Policy and Arms Control and then as Special Assistant to the President and Senior Director for Nonproliferation and Export Controls. He also advised corporate clients as a Principal at the Scowcroft Group and spent eight years practicing law at Hogan & Hartson and Covington & Burling.

Mr. Poneman is a Senior Fellow at the Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs, a Distinguished Fellow at the Paulson Institute, and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Mr. Poneman was educated at Harvard and Oxford University.
